Earnest pleas are being made that the measure be allowed to sleep until another session, when campaigns will be over and votes can be cast with less serious consequences.

Have Little Sympathy. Advocates of ship or mail subsidy have little sympathy with the attempt to postpone action. Aided by the recommendation of President Taft in speeches and his message, they see no good purpose in the postponement of the issue.

They characterize the present effort as a part of the systematic effort which has continually been put forward to kill the legislation by those hostile to it, and are determined to have the bill, which has been reported, brought to a vote.
